PIERSON PORTRAIT PRESENTED TO PENN

Provost Smith Accepts Portrait of Professor Who Died in War

Ward Pierson, lawyer and professor at the University of Pennsylvania before he answered the country's call and gave his life in France, was honored today at Penn's commencement exercises by the presentation of his portrait to the University.

The portrait of Major Pierson was the gift of the Wharton Association, Lieutenant Orson J. Graham, of the 31st Infantry, making the speech of presentation.

Another portrait presented to the University was that of Professor Edgar Marburg, late director of the Engineering School. H. E. Ehlers made this presentation on behalf of the engineering school alumni.

Provost Smith accepted both portraits in the following words: "The University is indeed proud and glad to receive these beautiful portraits—reminders of loyal and devoted teachers who gloried in their profession and gave themselves without hope of fee or reward to those who followed their instruction. May I ask that you convey to the gracious donors the acceptance of their gift by the trustees of the University, accompanied with sincere thanks."

GETS FREE RIDE; IS HURT Boy Falls From Truck—Has Concussion of Brain

A free ride obtained today by fifteen-year-old David Goldberg, of the Jewish Foster Home, brought him serious injury.

The boy asked Joseph Boone, who was driving a motortruck, to give him a ride. Boone obliged. The youngster fell off the truck directly in front of the Jewish Hospital, when the vehicle came to a sudden stop.

The boy was taken into the hospital. It was found that he received concussion of the brain. Boone surrendered to the police.

COLLEGE'S WAR WORK LAUDED BY SMITH

Provost Says Men Should Regard It as Duty and Honor to Fight Under Justice Banner

SPEAKS TO GRADUATES Provost Smith, delivering his charge today to the graduating class of the University of Pennsylvania, emphasized the proud record of Penn's sons in the war. He called on the graduates, who took their places today in the world of action, to "regard it as your duty and glory to be enlisted under the banner of Justice, tolerance, righteousness and humanity."

The Provost in part said: "You know of the honors to which literary merit and adherence to lofty principles elevated those who preceded you in your university career, and you are not insensible of the fact that all of the glory reflected on the University that is the most solid and comforting which has come from its own students. Soon you will have the opportunity of doing honor to your education. Permit us to promise ourselves that you will ever regard it your duty and glory to be enlisted under the banner of Justice, tolerance, righteousness and humanity, and to follow their exalted call."

"Whatever station of life you may occupy, never forget your obligations to the University, which will prevail, as it were, in pain for you, till it appears on the theatre of action with dignity; and will expect to find its own children at least among the number of its devoted and loyal friends."

"I wish you every felicity and bid you Godspeed!"
